

6516206393.txt

I have subscribed to satellite radio for almost two years now and have found it enjoyable and almost invaluable. I hardly listen to local radio anymore. If I have the choice of which stations to listen to, why shouldn't I? I need travel advisories occasionally, why should I be forced to switch to another station (local instead of satellite)?

The FCC should allow satellite radio companies the flexibility to program whatever the public wants.